

Contents

Introduction	1
Mark Jurdjevic

PART I. ON MONARCHY AND TYRANNY

Chapter 1. Petrarch	25
How a Ruler Ought to Govern His State (1373)	26
Chapter 2. Coluccio Salutati	56
On the Tyrant (1400)	56
Chapter 3. Bartolus of Sassoferrato	85
On Tyranny (c. 1355)	85

PART II. ON CIVIC REPUBLICANISM

Chapter 4. Leonardo Bruni	105
Panegyric to the City of Florence (c. 1402)	106
Oration for the Funeral of Nanni Strozzi (1428)	135
On the Florentine Constitution (1439)	141
Chapter 5. Poggio Bracciolini	145
In Praise of the Venetian Government (1459)	145
Chapter 6. Alamanno Rinuccini	156
Liberty (1479)	156
Chapter 7. Girolamo Savonarola	179
Treatise on the Constitution and Government of the City of Florence (1498)	180

PART III. ON FLORENCE BETWEEN REPUBLIC AND PRINCIPATE

Chapter 8. Paolo Vettori	205
Memorandum to Cardinal de' Medici About the Affairs of Florence (1512)	205
Chapter 9. Niccolò Machiavelli	210
Memorandum to the Newly Restored Medici (1512)	211
Discursus on Florentine Matters After the Death of Lorenzo de' Medici the Younger (1520–21)	213
Minutes of a Provision for the Reform of the Florentine Government (1522)	223
Memorandum to Cardinal Giulio on the Reform of the State of Florence (1522)	228
Summary of the Affairs of the City of Lucca (1520)	228
Chapter 10. Francesco Guicciardini	234
On the Method of Electing Offices in the Great Council (1512)	235
On the Mode of Reordering the Popular Government (1512)	250
The Government of Florence After the Medici Restoration (1513)	280
On the Mode of Securing the State of the House of Medici (1516)	285
Notes	297
Index	313
Acknowledgments	323