

---

Contents

---

List of illustrations	viii
List of films	ix
Acknowledgements	x

1	Gender relations and migration: Introduction to the current state of the debate	1
	1.1 The social construction of gender	1
	1.2 Intersectionality: gender and its interdependence with other social markers	6
	1.3 Migration	12
	1.4 Gender in the migration process: between (in)visibility and dramatization	21
	1.5 Conclusion and outlook	23
2	Migration and gender: Researching migration in national, global, and transnational frameworks	26
	2.1 Gender and social inequality: the challenges of migration research	26
	2.2 Key questions and limitations of assimilation theories	26
	2.3 The neoclassical approach and world-systems theory: analyzing international migration in a globalized context	30
	2.4 The transnational perspective in migration research and gender-sensitive inequality analysis	33
	2.5 The interplay of gender, ethnicity/race, and class from a transnational perspective	37
	2.6 Summary and outlook	39

3	Doing migration and doing gender: Intersectional perspectives on migration and gender	41
	3.1 Introduction	41
	3.2 Doing migration: the social constructivist perspective in migration research	42
	3.3 Studies of intersectionality: analyzing the interplay of migration and gender	47
	3.4 Migration and gender in the focus of intersectionality: the current research on the intra-European migration and mobility	53
	3.5 Conclusion and outlook	57
4	Care: An intersectional analysis of transnational care work and transnational families	59
	4.1 Care as (un)paid labor	59
	4.2 Care as gainful employment	61
	4.3 Global care chains: transnational motherhood and care circulation	65
	4.4 Transnational families between stigmatization and recognition	73
	4.5 The Intersection of regimes of gender, care/welfare, and migration	76
	4.6 Conclusion: the redistribution of social inequality	80
5	The changing face of citizenship: From the national model to the transnational and intersectional approaches	83
	5.1 Key dimensions of citizenship	83
	5.2 Transnationally oriented citizenship studies: citizenship in the process of deterritorialization	85
	5.3 Challenging “white androcentrism”: feminist and gender approaches to citizenship research	94
	5.4 “The limits of gendered citizenship”: the intersectional perspective in citizenship research	98
	5.5 Conclusion	101

---

6	Teaching intersections of gender, migration and transnationality	104
6.1	Cultural representations and signifying practices	104
6.2	A proposal for gender-sensitive migration research: summary of Chapter 1	107
6.3	Deconstructing classical migration research from the perspectives of gender and transnational studies: summary of Chapter 2	111
6.4	Intersectional tools for transnational migration research: summary of Chapter 3	115
6.5	Intersectional analysis of transnational care relations: summary of Chapter 4	119
6.6	Citizenship theories beyond the national paradigm: summary of Chapter 5	123
	References	128
	index	150