

Contents

About the Author	xii
Introduction	xii
Acknowledgements	xviii
1 INTERACTION	1
Why is interaction important?	1
Example	2
What do we mean by interaction?	2
Sociological perspectives on interaction	2
What do we mean by intra-action?	3
Interaction and intra-action	4
Simmel's exploration of interaction	5
Defining interaction	5
Interaction and sociation (socialization)	5
Form and content of interaction	6
Domination and conflict in social interaction	7
Domination	7
Conflict	8
Additional approaches to interaction	8
Critical theory	9
Exchange theory	9
Structural functionalism	10
Feminist theory	10
Micro-sociology	11
Social networking	11
Geometry of interaction	12
Dyad	12
Triad	13
Group size	13
Interaction within and between groups	14
Sociological perspectives	14
Social psychological perspectives	15
Sociology and psychology	16

Summary	17
Concepts in Context	17
Self-reflective Questions	18
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	18
2 SYMBOLIC INTERACTIONISM	20
Why is symbolic interactionism important?	20
Example	21
What do we mean by symbolic interactionism?	21
Origins	21
Definition	22
Social interaction, thought socialization, meaning and symbols	23
Thinking	23
Socialization	24
Meaning	24
Symbols	25
Intra-action?	25
Psychological perspectives	26
Key sociological and psychological concepts in symbolic interactionism	28
The self	28
Mead's 'i', 'me' and the 'generalized other'	29
Goffman's concept of self: dramaturgy, performance and roles	30
Sociology of emotions	32
Methods and methodology of symbolic interactionism	33
Ethnomethodology	34
Summary	34
Concepts in Context	35
Self-reflective Questions	36
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	36
3 SOCIALIZATION	38
Why is socialization important?	38
Example	38
What do we mean by socialization?	39
Sociological perspectives on socialization	39
Socialization and internalization	41
Psychological perspectives on socialization	43
Connections between sociology and psychology	44

Socialization and intra-action	44
The context of socialization	45
Origins of socialization: childhood socialization	45
Models of childhood socialization	46
Effective childhood socialization	47
How does socialization take place?	48
The foundations of socialization	49
Parenting and family	50
School	51
Peers	52
Gender	53
Mass media and the new technologies	53
Socialization through the life course	54
Summary	55
Concepts in Context	55
Self-reflective Questions	56
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	56
4 IDENTITY	59
Why is identity important?	59
Example	60
What do we mean by identity?	60
Personal identity	62
Psychological perspectives	63
Social/relational identity	64
Psychological perspectives	65
Collective identity	66
Which level of identity analysis?	66
Identity and intra-action	67
Identity theories	67
Role identity theory	68
Identity theory	68
Affect control theory	69
Queer theory	70
Categorized identities	70
Stigmatized identity	70
Gender identity	71
Sexual identity	72
Race and ethnic identity	73
Summary	74

Concepts in Context	74
Self-reflective Questions	75
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	75
5 THE SELF (Sociological and Psychological Definitions)	78
Why is the self important?	78
Example	79
Sociological approaches to the self	79
Classic social theory and the self	80
Georg Simmel	80
Karl Marx, Emile Durkheim and Max Weber	82
American Pragmatism and the self	83
William James (1842–1910)	84
Georg Herbert Mead (1863–1931)	85
John Dewey (1859–1952)	86
Charles Sanders Peirce (1839–1919)	87
Symbolic interactionism, Erving Goffman and the self	87
Recent approaches to the self	89
Reflexive self	90
Psychological approaches to the self	91
Defining the self	91
The self-concept	93
Self-awareness and self-consciousness	96
Selfhood	98
Synthesized approaches to the self	99
Identity and self	99
Social cognition and the self	101
Self and intra-action	102
Summary	102
Concepts in Context	103
Self-reflective Questions	103
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	104
6 THE UNCONSCIOUS AND CONSCIOUS SELF (Psychoanalytic and Psychotherapeutic Approaches)	106
Why is unconscious and conscious self important?	106
Example	107

Why psychoanalysis?	107
Defining the self through Freud's psychoanalysis	108
Neo-Freudian approaches to the self	110
The Frankfurt School approaches to the self	111
Post-Freudian approaches to the self	112
Lacanian psychoanalytic approaches to the self	113
Limitations	114
Why person-centred approach?	114
Defining the self through Rogers' theory	115
Self-related therapeutic techniques	116
Psychoanalytic psychotherapy	117
Person-centred psychotherapy	119
Comparison	120
Limitations: therapeutic discourse	120
Therapeutic techniques and intra-action	122
Summary	122
Concepts in Context	123
Self-reflective Questions	124
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	124
7 INTRA-ACTION	126
Why is intra-action important?	126
Example	127
What do we mean by intra-action?	127
Interaction and intra-action: a dualism	128
Interaction and intra-action: a duality	129
Origins of Intra-action	130
Georg Simmel	130
American Pragmatism	131
Vygotsky and Piaget	132
Current theories and applications	133
Dualism: intra-action in dialogical terms	134
Duality: intra-action through inner speech	135
Duality: intra-action as internal conversation and interaction as external conversation	140
Reflexivity: applied intra-action	143
Reflexivity as dualism	143
Reflexivity as duality	145
Applied intra-action through mediation	147

Summary	149
Concepts in Context	150
Self-reflective Questions	151
Possible ways of exploring the questions offered in this chapter and Further Readings	151
Conclusion	153
Bibliography	156
Index	181