

Detailed Contents

Series Editor's Foreword	xiv
Acknowledgments	xvi
Introduction	1
Chapter 1: The Person and the Intellectual Context	10
A) The Person	10
B) The Intellectual Context	12
Chapter 2: The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism and the "Sect Essays"	16
A) The Protestant Ethic Thesis I: The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism	16
1) The Background	16
2) The Argument	18
3) The Puritan Style of Life	20
B) The Protestant Ethic Thesis II: The Protestant Sects and Ethical Action	22
Chapter 3: The Methodology	31
A) Background Ideas and Presuppositions	32
1) The Rejection of the Search for True Values, General Laws, and Objective Facts	32
2) Weber's Rejection of Organic Holism	34
3) From Eurocentrism to a Comparative Sociology of Subjective Meaning	34
4) Conflict and Ethical Action	36

B) Specific Components of Weber's Methodology	37
1) The Embrace of Multicausality	37
2) Interpretive Understanding and Subjective Meaning	38
3) The Four Types of Social Action and Subjective Meaning	39
4) Value-Freedom and Value-Relevance	41
5) Ideal Types	43
6) The Goal of Weber's Sociology	44
Chapter 4: Economy and Society	47
A) "Locating" Social Action: Societal Domains and Ideal Types	48
B) Ideal Types as "Yardsticks"	51
1) Legitimate Rulership	52
2) Status Groups	55
C) Ideal Types as Hypothesis-Forming Models	56
1) Elective Affinity and Relations of Antagonism Models	58
2) Developmental Models	59
D) Driving Forces: The Multicausality of E&S , Social Carriers, Power, and Ideas	62
E) The Interweaving of Past and Present	65
Chapter 5: The Social and Political Context	70
A) Weber's Analysis	73
B) Weber's Response	77
1) The Support for Strong Parliaments	77
2) The Support for Democracy	78
3) The Support for Capitalism	78
4) The Necessary Constriction of Science	79
5) The Support for a Strong National State	80
Chapter 6: "Rationalism" East and West: The Economic Ethics of the World Religions and the Turn Toward a Sociology of Civilizations	84
A) The EEWR: The Major Themes and Causal Framework	85
B) Civilizations and a Civilization's "Rationalism": The Turn Toward a Sociology of Civilizations	89

Chapter 7: The Sociology of Civilizations I: Western
Rationalism and Modern Western Rationalism	94
A) Western Rationalism's Track I: Independent Cities, Christianity, Law, and Citizens in the Western Middle Ages	97
1) China, India, and the Middle East	99
2) Christianity I: The Decline of Magic	99
3) Christianity II: The City, the Formation of the Congregation, and the Further Weakening of Clan Ties	101
4) Roman Law and Canon Law	103
5) The Law: Comparisons to China, India, and the Middle East	106
6) Origins of the Modern State	108
B) Western Rationalism's Tracks II: The West's Structural Heterogeneity and the Reformation	109
1) The Reformation: World and Religion Tensions	112
2) The Patrimonial Empires: Absolutism, Mercantilism, and the Decline of the Urban Revolution	114
a) The Putting Out System	115
b) The Decline of Feudalism	115
c) The Rise of Patrimonial Empires and Mercantilism	116
d) Mercantilism's Opposition to Modern Capitalism	117
C) The 17th and 18th Centuries: Technology, Science and Religion, the Factory, and Commercialization	117
1) The Role of Technological Change	118
2) The Influence of Science: Material-Technological Interests and Religious Belief	118
3) The Rise of the Factory	119
4) Commercialization	120
D) Modern Western Rationalism's Concatenating Groups: Logical-Formal Law, the Modern State, and Bureaucratic Rulership	123
E) Modern Western Rationalism and Modern Capitalism's Autonomy	124
F) Weber's Multicausal, Comparative, and Configurational Methodology Revisited	127