

Contents

Introduction	1
1 Globalization Under and After Socialism: A Comparative and Historical Perspective	8
2 The Limits of Autarchy in the Periphery: Trade, Planning, and East European Industrialization, 1946–1969	32
3 Upgrading Socialism: Technology, Debt, and East European Reform, 1968–1985	65
4 Socialist Protoglobalization and Patterns of Uneven Transnational Integration After 1989	108
5 Transnational Integration and Specialization in the 2000s: Diverging International Market Roles	142
6 Critical Junctures and the Politics of Institutional Adjustment: Explaining Divergence	168
Conclusion	194
Acknowledgments	213
List of Interviews	217
Notes	221
Bibliography	227
Index	249